FCGA marks Gimme Fibre Day

MUSCAT

THE GLOBAL FIBRE-to-the-home (FTTH) market reached 162.6 million subscribers by end of 2014 according to the FTTH Council Global Alliance (FCGA) global studies, according to a press release.

FTTH is a future-proof technology and fast growing method of providing higher bandwidth to consumers and businesses, enabling more robust video, Internet and voice services.

Marking the birthday of Sir Charles Kuen Kao, Physics Nobel Prize Winner for ground-breaking achievements concerning the transmission of light in fibres for optical communication, the FCGA annually celebrates Gimme Fibre Day on November 4. The day will be marked by a series of planned activities and regional initiatives by the six global FTTH Councils.
